Preface

India as a Welfare State has numerous schemes formulated by the Government both at the Central and State levels, each with elaborate guidelines containing the aim and objective, procedure of implementation, eligibility, etc. However, these schemes are generally departmental and, therefore, are executed in isolation by different agencies of the government. Further, the guidelines being published by different ministries or departments are generally circulated among the officials down the line but are not available to those for whose benefit they have been formulated. Most of our citizens, particularly the under-privileged, are not fully aware of their entitlements. This frustrates what the Directive Principles of our Constitution aim at.

There is, therefore, a felt need for consolidating the information of all the programme-outlines in a single publication, so that the implementing agencies at all levels can obtain a holistic view of what our people are entitled to and the procedure of implementation of the schemes. This is the thinking behind publication of this monograph.

Shri Manoj Pant IAS, District Magistrate North 24-Paraganas, responded immediately to the request for taking in hand such a compilation and Smt. Anamika Mazumdar WBCS (Exec.) Deputy Magistrate & Deputy Collector North 24-Paraganas, toiled hard to compile all the programmes in a common format. Their contribution is acknowledged with gratitude.

We are aware that this handbook is not exhaustive. Suggestions, corrections or additions from any quarter are most welcome. We look forward to such contributions. A Bengali version of this publication is being planned shortly.
